Images should have been taken over the past year.

10 th February	ALISON WEBBER – THE CLOAK OF CONFORMITY AND THE CORSET OF EXPECTATION  Alison describes herself as a neurodivergent (autistic) photographer from Dorchester in Dorset and during this evening she will present a talk about photography and autism.  As someone on the autism spectrum, she has expended a great deal of time and energy creating different versions of herself in an attempt to fit into society's expectations of how she should behave. She refers to this disguise as the Cloak of Conformity and the Corset of Expectation. The corset shaped her into an idealised form whilst the cloak displayed a version of her to the world which said, "Look I fit in."  The Cloak of Conformity and the Corset of Expectation tells the story of Alison's relationship with photography and autism and the ways in which her photographic journey has helped her realise that the cloak and the corset have been suffocating creativity and that by discarding them she can express her true identity.

He will also briefly cover the printing of the images which he will bring with him.
